

IN THE WORDS OF NICHOLAS MASSENBURG

July 30. Today, I was blessed with the opportunity to sound the closing bell at Nasdaq on behalf of and with members of the Ad Council, the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention, and the Jed Foundation, raising awareness about the horrors of suicide in our country while taking advantage of a once in a lifetime opportunity to engage my community through the media. I continue to stand on the shoulders of my mother's indelible legacy, while also forging my own path forward through the causes that mean so much to me. I will forever be grateful for this unprecedented moment in my life thus far, and hope to have more incredible opportunities like this one. (Check me out on that Jumbotron in the middle of Times Square, I was shook).

Nicholas was a member of the NBCS Class of 2013 and a graduate of the Peddie School in East Windsor
